

Absolute set to release Skunk Anansie's new album & single

Absolute Marketing & Distribution (AMD) has recently signed what might be one of their most significant projects in the complete & original line-up of Skunk Anansie. Absolute and the band's parent label V2 Benelux have entered into a 'hybrid' agreement to represent the band in the UK which in turn means that label manager Kate Jadick alongside the rest of the Absolute team will be providing label management, copyright registration & comprehensive physical & digital retail marketing services for the album & single releases.

The band have come together after recording a few new tracks for their last release to make a full album that is completely and utterly progressive and somewhat of a rebirth in the band's sonic history.

After selling over 5 million albums worldwide, headlining Glastonbury and touring with Muse, U2 and Rammstein (to name but a few) – Skunk Anansie decided to explore different individual interests. 2010 sees Skunk Anansie regrouped and firing on all cylinders; Skin, Cass, Ace and Mark are ready to unleash a modern rock masterpiece later this year.

Lead single "My Ugly Boy" is released in the UK on 16th August followed by the new album 'Wonderlustre' which is out on 13th September 2010 on V2 Benelux via AMD/Universal. The album release will be followed by a fully sold out UK tour in November and is preceded by multiple appearances across the UK festival circuit including main stage slots at T In The Park, V Festival & Sonisphere.

November UK tour dates as follows:

13.11.2010	Academy	Manchester
